

VISCOSITY GLASS

By

CRISTY ALOYSI

Cristy Aloysi began her glassblowing career at Urban Glass in New York City. There she became fascinated with the ancient process of glassmaking. The challenge of forming hand made objects out of this molten medium captivated them. While in New York she became involved in the city's energetic art and design world and has brought this influence into her work.

In 2002 Cristy moved to Seattle WA, the center of the American art glass movement, to create a line of contemporary glass objects for the home. Her goal was to create pieces that are unique in their clean lines and simple designs. The beauty of Viscosity glass is that no two are exactly the same. Each one has been carefully shaped by the hands of the artist creating a uniqueness that cannot be imitated by any machine. When you purchase Viscosity glass you are supporting the 3000 year old tradition of glassmaking and the American art glass movement.
